

GLOBAL CODE OF BUSINESS CONDUCT AND ETHICS POLICY

1. Principle of Ethical Integrity

All directors, executives, and employees must uphold the highest standards of integrity, transparency, and compliance with applicable local and international statutes. Unethical practices, deceitful billing, or willful distortion of financial records will result in immediate termination of employment and referral for civil or criminal prosecution.

2. Conflicts of Interest and Outside Employment

Employees owe their primary professional duty to the company.

- Direct Moonlighting Prohibition: Employees may not engage in secondary employment, consulting, advisory roles, or board seats with any commercial entity that directly or indirectly competes with company services or products.
- Vendor Transactions: Employees must formally recuse themselves from vendor selection or procurement decisions if any personal, familial, or romantic relation has an ownership or financial stake in the bidding supplier.
- Outside Business Disclosures: Any secondary employment or freelance enterprise must be formally submitted to the Compliance Office for written conflict review via compliance@company.internal.

3. Anti-Bribery, Gifts, and Corporate Entertainment

The company enforces a zero-tolerance stance against commercial bribery, kickbacks, and corruption.

- Nominal Gifts Cap: Promotional or customary business gifts under the value of fifty US dollars ($50) may be accepted (e.g., branded pens, holiday confection baskets).
- Gifts Exceeding $50: Any gift valued in excess of $50 must be respectfully declined or surrendered to the Corporate Compliance Department for company-wide raffle distribution.
- Cash Prohibition: Cash, gift cards, prepaid debit cards, or cryptocurrency tokens may NEVER be given or accepted under any circumstances regardless of dollar value.

4. Whistleblower Protection and Anonymous Hotline

The company maintains an absolute non-retaliation policy for employees who report suspected legal, ethical, or financial violations in good faith.

Whistleblower reports may be filed completely anonymously via:

- 24/7 Toll-Free Telephone Hotline: 1-800-555-ETHIC (1-800-555-3844)
- Secure Reporting Web Portal: <https://ethics-hotline.company.internal>
- Direct Compliance Email: ethics-office@company.internal

Any manager who engages in adverse employment actions, intimidation, or retaliation against a reporting employee will be summarily dismissed.
